

1

Actual (de facto) population

2

Usually resident population

3

The data refer to the year or month of registration (including some delayed registrations of events occurring in previous years and months).

4

Civilian deaths only.

5

Until 1981, the official population estimates did not account for movements to/from the armed forces or changes in the number of armed forces stationed in Northern Ireland.

6

There is a notable dip in the number of civilian males at ages 18 and 19 in the official population estimates for the years 1971-1980. This is related to the fact that military conscripts were excluded from the official population estimates.

7

Starting in 1981, the population estimates account for the movements to/from the armed forces and changes in the number of armed forces stationed in Northern Ireland. In addition, the NISRA adjusted these estimates for census under-enumeration.

8

Revised according to the 2011 census inter-censal population estimates.

9

Post-censal population estimates based on the 2011 census.

10

The data refer to the month of occurrence.

11

There is a notable dip in the number of females and males at ages 18, 19, and 20 in the official population estimates for the years 2019-2020. This implausible pattern occurs despite the fact that the population estimates account for the movements to/from the armed forces and changes in the number of armed forces stationed in Northern Ireland.

12

The stated total live births by month refer to the total births occurring during the year. These totals differ from the total live births by registration.

13

Inter-censal population estimates based on the 2021 census.

14

Post-censal population estimates based on the 2021 census.
